I. Legislative Mandate for the Operation of the Board

Section 3A of the Parole of Prisoners Act states:

“For the purposes of this Act, there shall be a board to be known as the Parole Board of the Northern Territory.”

II. Membership of the Board

Sections 3B and 3C of the Parole of Prisoners Act require that the Chief Justice be Chairman of the Board, and that membership shall comprise the Director of Correctional Services appointed under section 6(1) of the Prisons (Correctional Services) Act, and not more than four (4) other members. Those four (4) members are appointed by the Minister for three (3) year terms, are eligible for reappointment, and may resign their membership in writing to the Minister.

Every Judge of the Supreme Court is an Acting Chairman of the Board, and may be appointed by the Chairman to attend meetings or perform functions of his office in his stead. The Chief Justice nominated Judge Bailey as acting Chairman for the 2001 calendar year.

The Minister may appoint a person to act as a member of the Board while a member is not available or there is a vacancy on the Board.

During 2001, membership of the Board comprised:

Justice S R Bailey – A/Chairman
Commissioner R D Moore – Director of Correctional Services
Mr J Flynn – Darwin
Ms P Fuller - Darwin
Ms B Nasir – Darwin
Mr P Sitzler – Alice Springs

Chief Justice B Martin chaired one meeting during 2001.

Functions of Secretary to the Parole Board were carried out by two members of the Community Corrections Division of Northern Territory Correctional Services throughout the year.

III. Functions and Responsibilities of the Board

In summary, the Board:

- i) decides which prisoners, whose sentence includes a non parole period, will be released to parole;
- ii) sets the conditions of release;
- iii) may vary the conditions of a parole order; and
- iv) determines if and how a parole order should be revoked.

i. Release

The Parole Board considers all cases where a prisoner's sentence has a non parole period specified by the court. A non parole period is a minimum term of imprisonment during which an offender is not eligible to be released from prison to parole.

Northern Territory legislation requires the court to fix a non parole period if an offender has been sentenced to 12 months imprisonment or more, unless they have been convicted of murder or the court thinks it is inappropriate. The non parole period must not be less than 50% of the sentence to be served, and cannot be less than 8 months. For certain sex offences, the non parole period set cannot be less than 70% of the head sentence. These provisions do not apply where the sentence of imprisonment is wholly or partially suspended.

Automatic remission of sentence under the Prisons (Correctional Services) Act ceased as of 17 September 1996. A prisoner whose parole is cancelled will, unless another non parole period is set, return to prison to serve the balance of the original sentence.

The Board considers a broad range of material when deciding whether or not to release a prisoner to parole. The documentation will always include:

- a Parole Report prepared by the assigned Parole Officer;
- an Institutional Report prepared by staff of the prison where the prisoner is held;
- a police record of prior convictions; and
- a transcript of the Supreme Court sentencing details, if the prisoner was sentenced in that court.

The Board may also consider such other reports as are relevant for the individual case, including:

- Pre Sentence Reports;
- Psychological/Psychiatric Assessments and Reports;
- Medical Assessments and Reports;
- Assessments and Reports from Substance Misuse Programs and Treatment Facilities;

- Legal Opinions;
- Letters and/or Reports from Interstate Services;
- Letters from the prisoner; and
- Letters from the victim or victim's representative.

The Chairman may require a prisoner to be brought before the Board pursuant to Section 3G of the Parole of Prisoners Act. No prisoners were required to attend a Board meeting during 2001.

Under section 5 of the Act, the Parole Board has discretion to direct the release of a prisoner on parole, providing that the time of release is after expiration of the non parole period.

The Board may decline to release a prisoner to parole, or defer consideration to a later meeting. Prisoners may also decline parole consideration.

2001 Parole Board Decisions
Result	Number	% of Total
Granted	89	57.79
Refused	20	12.99
Deferred	33	21.43
Declined by Prisoner	12	7.73
	154	100%

ii. Conditions of Release

Section 5(5)(a) of the Parole of Prisoners Act requires that the person released shall be subject to supervision and obey all reasonable directions of the appointed supervisor for the duration of the parole period. Section 5(5)(b) allows the Board to set such other conditions as it sees fit.

The standard parole conditions attached to every Northern Territory Parole Order are:

1. the parolee shall be of good behaviour and shall not violate the law;
2. the parolee shall be subject to supervision on parole of a parole officer, appointed in accordance with this parole order, and shall obey all reasonable directions of the parole officer appointed;
3. the parolee shall report to the parole officer, or other person nominated by the parole officer, in the manner and at the places and times directed by the officer and shall be available for interview at such times and places as a parole officer or nominee may from time to time direct;
4. the parolee shall not leave the Northern Territory without the written permission of the supervising parole officer;
5. the parolee shall enter into employment arranged or agreed upon by the parole officer and shall notify the parole officer of any intention to change employment before such change occurs or, if this is impracticable, then within such period after the change as may have been directed by the parole officer;

6. the parolee shall reside at an address arranged or agreed upon by the parole officer and shall notify the parole officer of any intention to change address before such change occurs or, if this is impracticable, then within such period after the change as may have been directed by the parole officer;
7. the parolee shall not associate with any person specified in a direction by the parole officer to the parolee;
8. the parolee shall not frequent or visit any place or district specified in a direction by the parole officer to the parolee.

The Board frequently sets additional conditions which are tailored to maximise community protection by addressing the factors which underlie a prisoner's offending behaviour. Those additional conditions often include:

- abstinence from alcohol and other substances;
- breath testing and urinalysis;
- residence at a specified community or outstation;
- participation in and completion of an assessment/treatment/counselling regime (residential or sessional attendance) e.g. alcohol programs, domestic violence programs, sex offender programs, psychiatric treatment;
- no contact, directly or indirectly, with a victim or potential victims.

 Includes: Not enter licensed premises; Commit no acts of violence; Nil unsupervised contact with minors; Not visit specified communities; Not leave the NT; Not enter the NT; Not carry weapon; and Not conduct business.

Parole officers throughout the Northern Territory, and interstate where a parolee has transferred interstate, monitor the parolee's compliance with the conditions set, and are required to bring any incident of non compliance to the Board's attention.

iii. Variation of Parole Conditions

Pursuant to sections 5(6) and (6AA) of the Parole of Prisoners Act the Chairman may amend a parole order by varying or revoking a condition of the order at any time before the expiration of the order.

This would usually be done because a condition is no longer workable. For example, the parolee is directed to enter and complete a residential program which closes down before completion of the parolee's treatment.

Under section 5(7) the amendment does not take effect until notice is given to the parolee of that amendment.

During 2001, the Parole Board varied a condition on one parole order.

iv. Revocation

If a parolee fails to comply with the conditions of a parole order, the supervising parole officer prepares a report for the Board's consideration setting out the circumstances of the breach. The breaches fall into two categories – reoffending and conditional breach.

The Chairman has the power to revoke a parole order, before or after the expiration of that order, under the circumstances set out in section 5 of the Parole of Prisoners Act.

The Board may request the Commissioner of Police to have a parolee in non compliance with their conditions arrested and taken before the court for cancellation of the parole order. The parolee may then argue any reasons for the non compliance before the court.

Alternatively, the Chairman may issue an instrument of revocation pursuant to sections 5(6) or 5(6AA) of the Parole of Prisoners Act.

Of the Revocation Reports considered by the Board during 2001, failure to comply with conditions of parole release were more than twice that of reconviction (68% for failure to comply compared with 32% for reconviction). The majority of parolees failing to comply with the conditions of their parole did so within the first three months of release (see Appendix 6).

- iii. Over the past 14 years, the workload of the Parole Board has fluctuated between a low of 374 business items in both 1999 and 2000 to a high of 522 business items in 1996.

Parole Outcomes of Prisoners Released in 2001
	Number	% of Total
Parole Still Active	52	57.14
Parole Order Completed	13	14.29
Parole Revoked	16	17.58
Revocation in Progress	6	6.59
Registration Interstate	4	4.40
	91	100%

As at 31 December 2001, there were 128 parolees under supervision in the Northern Territory, of which 5 were Federal offenders and 4 were interstate parolees.

At the meeting held on 31 January 2001, the Board determined that reports prepared in relation to illegal non citizens convicted of federal charges to do with people smuggling and illegal fishing in Australian waters who were to be deported immediately upon release, need not come before it given their parole release is automatic. Reports on this category of offender would be forwarded directly to the Federal Attorney-General's Department by the Secretary. In 2001, 6 of these reports were forwarded to the Federal Attorney-General's Department.

V. Amendments to Legislation

There were no amendments to the Sentencing Act, Parole of Prisoners Act or Parole Orders (Transfer) Act during 2001 which affected the fixing of non parole periods, release to parole or operations of the Parole Board.

VI. Parole Orders (Transfer) Act

This Act commenced in 1984 as part of a national scheme under which an offender on parole can transfer to another jurisdiction and have his/her parole order registered under the corresponding Act in the other jurisdiction.

Upon registration, the parolee ceases to have any connection with the originating jurisdiction. The parole order and original sentence are treated as though they were imposed in the receiving jurisdiction.

In 2001 there were 12 cases where Northern Territory parolees moved to other jurisdictions and had their parole orders registered there, while 4 parole order from other jurisdictions were registered in the Northern Territory as follows:

Jurisdiction	Transfer to NT	Transfer from NT
QLD	0	0
VIC	0	4
WA	0	5
SA	2	1
NSW	1	2
	4	12

A further four requests made during 2001 for registration of Northern Territory Parole Orders in interstate jurisdictions were outstanding as at 31 December 2001.

VII. Extradition

Where a parolee has left the Northern Territory without permission, failed to comply with parole conditions whilst interstate, or committed further offences, the Board may consider extradition of the parolee to the Northern Territory to serve the outstanding balance of the sentence to which the parole order relates. Each case is considered on its merits.

During 2001, 3 parolees were extradited from other jurisdictions and all were returned to a Northern Territory prison.

VIII. Victims of Crime

The Northern Territory Charter for Victims of Crime lays down basic guiding principles to ensure sympathetic treatment and protection for victims and their families.

Under the Charter the victim may apply in writing to the Secretary of the Parole Board requesting a direction be given to an offender not to approach them whilst on parole, and for advice about the outcome of any parole proceedings concerning the offender.

Victim issues and concerns are frequently identified in reports prepared for the Board's consideration, and those concerns may result in special conditions being added to a parole order to avoid unwelcome contact.

IX. Third Australian Conference of Parole Boards and Offender Review Boards

In March 2001, the Chairman and Secretary attended the Third Australian Conference of Parole Boards and Offender Review Boards in Queensland. This forum allowed over 100 delegates from all Australian jurisdictions and New Zealand to discuss a range of pre and post release programs and issues.

X. Acknowledgements

The Parole Board wishes to express appreciation for the ongoing assistance provided by Northern Territory Correctional Services, and other government and community organisations which have assisted the Board with its work during the year.
